ANNUAL REPORT OF THE PRESIDENT TO THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES.

November 1, 1909.

Hon. F. E. Pomerene, President of Board of Trustees, The Ohio State University:

DEAR SIR:—I have the honor to present, through you, to the Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University for transmission to the Governor of Ohio, as required by law, the thirty-ninth annual report of the President of The Ohio State University for the year ending June 30, 1909.

THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES.

During the year the appointment of Hon. John T. Mack, of Sandusky, Ohio, for a term of seven years beginning May, 1908, was confirmed by the Senate. The term of Hon. Frank A. Derthick, of Mantua, Portage County, expired in May, 1909. Mr. Julius F. Stone, of Franklin County, was appointed to succeed Mr. Derthick. Mr. Derthick was a representative farmer, a graduate of Hiram College, well known for his efficient public service, and served the University with intelligence, conscience and devotion. He retired from office with the appreciation of the Trustees for his service, and appreciation on the part of all interested in the welfare of the University. His successor, Mr. Stone, brings to the office a large business experience and interest in the affairs of the University of long standing and an intelligent grasp of the work the University is called to do.

THE FACULTY.

During the year the Faculty suffered a loss in the death of Frank Kelton Bailey, Ph. D., Instructor in the Department of Physics. His death occurred at Seattle in July. Dr. Bailey had been in the service of the University for a period of three years. Dr. Bailey was a graduate of Colorado College, class of 1898, and received his doctor's degree from Clark University in 1906. Unfortunate in his physical endowment, his career was brief, but sufficiently extended to demonstrate his talent and scholarship.

During the year Professor George Wells Knight, Ph. D., of the Department of American History, Professor Frank A. Ray, of the Department of Mine Engineering, Associate Professor Edward E. Somermeier, of the Department of Metallurgy and Mineralogy, and Instructor William F. Gephart, of the Department of Economics and Sociology, were absent on leave.

Associate Professor Frederick E. Kester, of the Department of Physics, resigned to accept a professorship in the Kansas State University. Professor Kester graduated with the class of 1895; received his doctor's degree from Cornell ten years later. He was for some time a student abroad, and had distinguished himself in the Department of Physics, and earned the promotion received after twelve years of service in several capacities in the Department of Physics. The Kansas State University is to be congratulated upon this choice.

The most striking change in the Faculty was due to the reorganization of the College of Law. During the summer the Hon. John Jay Adams was elected Dean of the College of Law, and will devote his entire time to the office. Associated with him in this relation are Professor William Herbert Page, Professor George W. Rightmire, Professor Alonzo H. Tuttle and Instructor William B. Cockley. Three other men, Hon. John A. Shauck, of the Supreme Court, Hon. Edgar B. Kinkead and Hon. Edmond B. Dillon, of the Common Pleas Court, will continue to give instruction in a limited amount. This reorganization was due to the desire of the University to put the College of Law upon a professional basis and gather into the teaching force men whose time shall be given exclusively to the work of legal education. The change made it necessary for the services of a number of practicing attorneys, who had generously served the University, to cease.

It is appropriate that special mention should be made of the services rendered through a series of years by Professor George Wells Knight, Ph. D., Hon. Emilius O. Randall, Hon. James M. Butler and Hon. Gilbert H. Stewart. A shorter term of service was rendered in a temporary appointment of other members of the Columbus bar whose services were often rendered at personal sacrifice and inconvenience. The College is now well organized and in position to offer superior facilities for legal education. The further development by the increase of permanent professors will doubtless strengthen the College as conditions warrant.

Reference to the records will show that some promotions in title were made for younger men whose services and scholarship made such recognition desirable. As usual, a number of new appointments in subordinate positions were made to meet the demand for increased amount of teaching.

GIFTS.

In September, 1908, Mrs. Ellen Peabody Outhwaite gave to the University $2,000 as an endowment for the Outhwaite Collection on the Civil War. This gift was made to carry into effect a desire cherished for some years by the late Joseph H. Outhwaite, Dean of the College of Law. During his lifetime Dean Outhwaite had presented the University with a collection of books on the Civil War made during his term of ten years in Congress and during the subsequent years of active service in Columbus. This endowment will ensure a complete collection upon this important period of our history. A suitable acknowledgment of the generosity on the part of Mrs. Outhwaite was made at the time, and this public record of the fact is gratefully made.

In August, 1908, Mrs. Adelaide Knight Clark gave the University $2,000 as an endowment for the library to be used in the purchase of books for the Department of Economics and Sociology. This gift was a memorial to her husband, the late Professor Frederick C. Clark, who for five years served the University as Professor of Economics and Sociology. The enthusiastic devotion of Professor Clark to his chosen subject and the generous recognition of his character and services in this endowment call forth the appreciation and gratitude of all interested in the progress of the University.

The stimulus received some years ago in the founding of scholarships has not been lost. During the year Professor Samuel Carroll Derby laid the foundation of a scholarship in honor of his son, the late Walter Janney Derby, whose untimely death was universally mourned. This fund, when matured and completed, will provide for selected scholars whose studies may be pursued abroad. The developing interest in such foundations is a pleasing testimony to the devotion of the friends of the University and a prophecy of a larger usefulness in the support of scholarship.

On January 2, 1909, the Hon. Robert P. Scott, of Cadiz, Ohio, presented to the University the sum of $25,000, to be used as an endowment for Student Aid Fund. The problem of administering upon this fund was left to the discretion of the Trustees of the University. Mr. Scott wisely put no limitations or restrictions upon its use, believing that the Trustees from time to time would be able to make such adjustment as conditions would warrant. The generosity of this gift, and the confidence shown in the stability and wisdom of the Trustees in their management of such trust funds, are worthy of this public recognition. Mr. Scott has done a generous thing and has also shown his confidence in the high character of University Trustees in their management of public funds.

THE CARNEGIE FOUNDATION FOR THE ADVANCEMENT OF TEACHING.

Under date of June 9, 1909, the Carnegie Foundation, through its president, Hon. Henry S. Pritchett, LL. D., presented to the Governor of Ohio a communication upon the status of higher education in Ohio. This communication was called forth by the fact that the legislature had endorsed the request from the governing boards of three institutions supported by the state for participation in the retiring allowances to college professors. The Governor kindly forwarded a copy of this communication to the University. Inasmuch as it has been given general publicity, and inasmuch as it deals with the general status of higher education in Ohio, I incorporate it without further comment in this report, in order that interested students may have it as a matter of reference.

STATE OF OHIO, EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT, COLUMBUS.

June 9, 1909.

DEAR SIR:—The trustees of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching have received requests from the governing boards of three Ohio State institutions, from the Ohio Legislature and from yourself, that these institutions be admitted to the privileges of the endowment for retiring allowances to college teachers.

I forward under this cover a copy of the rules under which institutions of learning are admitted to the benefits of this endowment. As you will note, this Foundation is primarily one for higher education. Only such state institutions ought to be admitted to its benefits as maintain fair college standards, efficient courses of instruction and stand in organic relation to the public school system of their states.

In order to ascertain the facts bearing on these matters, the Foundation makes a study of the standards, the quality of work, and educational significance of such institutions as apply for admission to the retiring allowance system. Once admitted, however, the professors in such institutions may claim their retiring allowances upon fixed rules as to service and age, and they receive these allowances in such cases as a right, not as a favor; as a part, in fact, of their due compensation.

The request made by the authorities of the State of Ohio in behalf of the admission of the Ohio universities raises an unusual problem. The State of Ohio presents to the Carnegie Foundation not one university, but three; the Ohio State University at Columbus, the Ohio University at Athens, and the Miami University at Oxford. The educational composition of each of these institutions, their relations to each other and to the general school system of the state, are in some respects so extraordinary that, in communicating to you, as chief executive of Ohio, the decision of the executive committee of the Foundation, I am directed to include some statement of the considerations by which its action has been determined.

When the Carnegie Foundation came to consider the request of the State of Ohio from the standpoint of educational administration, it found that the state undertakes to maintain three institutions bearing the name university. Each of the three contains a college of liberal arts; each offers more or less post-graduate instruction; two of the three possess departments of engineering; two of the three conduct normal departments, while the third provides a college of education. Finally, two of the three carry on not only these college departments, but preparatory schools as well. Such overlapping as is represented here is not only wasteful, but it results in competitive bidding for students. It demoralizes the institutions concerned. It demoralizes no less the high school system of the state, and the students, instead of being stimulated to reach a single high standard, are confused by the various standards which the state provides, with a tendency always to accept the easiest alternative.

In order to get together a student body for each of the three universities, large numbers of conditioned and special students are admitted. Many of these students ought to be in the high schools of the state, where they should be required to prove their preparation. Their presence in the state universities weakens the high schools and also the grade of instruction which the university can offer. It is difficult, under the circumstances, for any one of the three institutions to be strict in this matter unless all are strict, and that all should be equally strict and act with the firmness and consistency that could be maintained by a single university capping the educational system is, of course, out of the question. The name university has in fact no definite meaning under such circumstances.

Our examination of the machinery by which students are admitted shows conclusively that the methods and standards of the three institutions differ so widely that they go far to neutralize any influence which they are in a position to exert upon the secondary school system of the state. The Ohio State University maintains regular inspectors, on the basis of whose report an accredited list of high schools has been made up. Ohio University, on the other hand, accepts students from many high schools that the Ohio State University finds unworthy of recognition, while Miami University also pursues a course of its own. It should be said to the credit of the Ohio State University that it maintains a careful and exact system of registration and that it guards the admission to its college and scientific school with reasonable care. In the Ohio University, on the contrary, there is no effective system of registration, and the only ruling principle which can be observed is the effort to bring into the college as many students as possible of all grades, in order to create the maximum effect upon the legislature.

Finally, the state further confuses the educational situation by maintaining two preparatory departments, thus retarding the development of a uniform and comprehensive secondary school system. It seems to us worthy of particular notice that the great state of Ohio should have a school system generally felt to be inferior to that of nearby western states, and that it should offer such meagre facilities for the effective training of teachers. There is unquestionably a close connection between this fact and the multiplication of state universities.

It is quite evident that the three state universities are not all real universities. That designation may fairly be conceded to Ohio State University, and, if relieved from the pressure of state competition, it would no doubt assume within a reasonable time the efficient and orderly development of such an institution as the University of Wisconsin. The Ohio University is a mixture of college, normal school and academy, while the Miami University is a fairly good college with the same mixture of normal school and academy.

In view of the conditions which have been referred to, it seems clear to the executive committee of the Carnegie Foundation that the cause of education would not be served by the admission of any of these institutions at the present time to the benefits of the Carnegie Foundation. The committee most respectfully ventures to suggest that the educational interests of the state of Ohio require that these three institutions be reconstructed in such wise that their functions may be differentiated and that each be assigned a definite place in a comprehensive and consistent educational system. This communication is made to the chief executive of the state in the belief that a frank statement of the situation, as it appears to us, is the best service which such a body as ours can render to the State of Ohio, and in the further belief that the adoption of a consistent and effective educational policy by the commonwealth is a matter in which the interests of all citizens of Ohio are seriously involved.

I am,
(Signed)

Most respectfully,

HENRY S. PRITCHETT,
President.

SUMMER TERM WORK.

THE SUMMER SCHOOL.

The summer term work for 1908 and also for 1909 is summarized briefly. In 1905 the attendance was 296; in 1906, 389; in 1907, 425; in 1908, 503; in 1909, 642. The distinctive features of the summer work through the entire experience have been the work for teachers and the work for graduate students. Considerable attention has been given to work for undergraduates, who, for one reason or another, took advantage of the summer term in which to secure college credit in some subjects offered. During 1909, however, there were 101 persons holding college degrees in attendance. In 1908 there were 62, and in 1907, 60. There were 44 institutions represented by degrees in 1909, as against 23 in 1908. The distribution of students shows that practically every county in the state, 20 states in the Union, and 10 foreign countries were represented in the attendance. The summer school was begun in the belief that it would enable the University to serve a larger constituency, and in the desire to offer facilities not offered elsewhere in the state. The success of the school has demonstrated beyond question the wisdom of the movement.

THE LAKE LABORATORY.

The Lake Laboratory maintained near Cedar Point for several years showed a good increase in attendance and a high degree of efficiency. The policy has been to bring to this point during the summer a number of professors from selected colleges, who should constitute a staff of instruction and who should also have facilities for engaging in personal research work. The students have usually been teachers in colleges or secondary schools, advanced students in the colleges and graduate students. During the summer there were enrollments from the University of Michigan, the University of Wisconsin, Denison University, Cincinnati University, University of Chicago, Buchtel College, Kenyon College and The Ohio State University. The further development of this important work is confidently expected. A modest building for dormitory purposes should be provided and the present building used almost exclusively for laboratory purposes. Ten years of experience have proved that this branch of summer work has been most valuable to the teachers of biological science in the state.

CIVIL ENGINEERING.

For a number of years all candidates for a degree in the Department of Civil Engineering have been required to spend a summer in camp in charge of practical field work. A superior piece of work was completed some years ago in the Yellowstone Park; later some work at Ft. Ancient. During the summer of 1909 the Department of Civil Engineering, under the leadership of Professor R. K. Schlafly, assisted by Mr. J. L. Murphy, Chief Engineer of the New York Coal Company, determined the boundary line of state property along the south shore of Buckeye Lake. This work was undertaken at the suggestion of Mr. E. E. Booton, Engineer of the Canal Land Department of the State Board of Public Works. A complete survey of the boundaries was made and an accurate map of the lake developed. The value of such practical service to young men in their training for professional life is evident. It is also manifest that by such methods a large amount of important service can be rendered to the interests of the state while serving the cause of education.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION.

The excessive amount of attention given by the public to athletic events has a tendency to obscure the fact that some very important service is rendered in the Department of Physical Education. This is required work on the part of both young men and young women. The department is so large as to render it impossible to do a great many things that would be of decided service. It is interesting to note that there were 1,059 male students in physical education and 381 female students, or a total of 1,440 students—practically one-half of the entire enrollment. This requirement is made only during the first and second years of college. Physical examinations are made in the fall term and spring term. These examinations discover the general health of the student, the important phases of inherited weakness, the strength of the organs of special senses, and some physical defects such as are common. These physical defects are recorded and effort made to remove them and improve the general condition of the student. It has not been possible to observe with sufficient accuracy to determine the effect of physical education, but one thing stands out clearly, namely: that fully ninety per cent. of the students have improved or developed in self-possession, physical courage, self-control, muscular strength, endurance, etc. Less than four per cent. of the men who composed the various athletic teams suffered from any illness during the entire year. Special exercises for the development of the body were prescribed to 537 men and 153 women. Another feature of the course has been lectures upon personal hygiene to both young men and young women, and some lectures upon the proper care of the injured. The Department of Physical Education has general charge and supervision of all athletic events. This organization has proved very satisfactory and effective.

THE HOME-MAKERS' COURSE.

For the first time the University tried the experiment of a four-weeks' course in the month of February, 1909, for the purpose of instructing women in the subject of domestic science. The first enrollment was 39, representing 20 counties of the state. The limitation was placed at 40, for the reason that this was as many as the facilities of the University could accommodate in addition to our regular classes. In order to keep the enrollment within the limit a number of applications were declined and no effort was made to enlist the women from Columbus or other cities of the state. Persons of middle age constituted quite a portion of the enrollment. The subject of instruction was in the line of cooking and sewing. Lectures were given each day, in addition to the ordinary instruction and laboratory work, upon topics of scientific and popular interest. These covered such themes as water supply, traveling libraries, the use and care of milk, heating and ventilation of houses, floriculture and the economic phases of the home. The success of the experiment was all that could have been anticipated by the most enthusiastic. It was a matter of sincere regret that the course of February, 1910 had to be withdrawn. The increased attendance in these departments for the current year at the University made it impossible to take care of any additional work.

AGRICULTURAL EXTENSION.

The legislature at its last session made an appropriation of $20,000 for the purpose of work in agricultural extension. The terms of the appropriation provide that this work should cover instruction in schools one week in length in agriculture and domestic science. It further provided that demonstration work could be carried at county fairs and at the state fair. Provision has been made for thirty-six schools of one week each in various parts of the state. Some demonstration work was given at the state fair and in a few of the county fairs. Experience has proved that there is a very large field of useful service that may be occupied with this kind of instruction. The schools have everywhere called forth enthusiasm and, reports, so far as they have been conducted, show sustained interest on the part of those attending. It is believed that the demonstration work might well be extended by carrying to selected communities approved methods of caring for orchards and fruits. The Trustees are so confident of the success that they will ask the legislature for increased appropriation in order that the work may be sustained and developed. A detailed report of this work cannot be made until the year has been closed.

THE WINTER COURSE IN AGRICULTURE.

This course has now been conducted for three years. It was started in the interest of the work of the farmer who might desire some instruction in scientific agriculture. The course is pursued for ten weeks, beginning the early part of January and closing the last of March. The enrollment the first year was 136; the second year, 193; the third year, 227, including 40 dairy students. The average age of the persons attending is twenty-five or twenty-six years. Men seventy years of age have been in attendance. Very few persons under twenty have ever enrolled. The aim of the course is entirely practical, and the offer is made to bring to men engaged in practical farming such instruction during the winter season as will help them in the several phases of farming as now carried on in Ohio. The men in attendance have shown great enthusiasm, and, as might be expected, faithful attendance upon the exercises. A distinctive feature of the work has been a daily lecture at four o'clock given by some person of recognized standing and merit in agricultural pursuits. These lectures have dealt with the problems of the farm from the standpoint of successful farmers. The value of this feature of the course has never been questioned and will be continued in the future. This work has been carried as a form of agricultural extension without any special appropriation for its maintenance and at the expense of the University.

THE ENROLLMENT.

The total enrollment for the year ending June 30, 1909, as shown by the summary below, was 3,050. The enrollment for the year previous was 2,686. The increase in enrollment has affected practically every department of instruction in the University. At the commencement in June, 1909, 333 degrees were granted as against 281 in 1908. In addition to these, six degrees have been granted during the year to persons who, for one reason or another had fallen a little short of completing the necessary requirements at commencement. Twenty-one persons received certificates for having completed the courses in Veterinary Medicine and in the College of Law; thus making a total of 360 persons whose educational work was completed. The summary is submitted herewith.

GROWTH IN ATTENDANCE.

The net attendance at the University, not including the enrollment of the summer term, beginning 1899 for eleven years, is as follows:

Year ending June, 1899.....	1,149
Year ending June, 1900.....	1,252
Year ending June, 1901.....	1,465
Year ending June, 1902.....	1,516
Year ending June, 1903.....	1,717
Year ending June, 1904.....	1,803
Year ending June, 1905.....	1,835
Year ending June, 1906.....	2,014
Year ending June, 1907.....	2,052
Year ending June, 1908.....	2,256
Year ending June, 1909.....	2,536

This shows an increase of 1,392 students in eleven years, or an increase of 121 per cent., or an average of 11 per cent. per annum for a period of eleven years.

The enrollment for the summer term which was begun in 1905, is as follows:

1905.....	296
1906.....	389
1907.....	425
1908.....	503
1909.....	642

This development of the summer school, as shown by these figures, is one of the most encouraging features of the University's work.

The net grand total since 1905, including the summer term, excluding names counted twice, is as follows:

1905.....	1,870
1906.....	2,157
1907.....	2,277
1908.....	2,686
1909.....	3,050

This shows an increase of 1,180 students for the five years during which the summer term has been operated, or 63 per cent., being an annual increase of 12 per cent.

There has been no effort in the past decade to do anything more than to take care of the students who presented themselves. The entrance requirements have been enforced with increased rigidity. It seems, therefore, entirely reasonable to assume that the attendance will continue to increase at substantially the same ratio for the next ten years as for the past ten years. This means more than 6,000 students within a decade. These figures are so large as to raise a doubt as to their realization. However, we cannot be blind to the fact that other universities have made similar growth, and that if one-half of the prospect is realized the University would have an attendance ranging from 4,500 to 5,000, and would be poorly prepared to take care of such a student body without seriously sacrificing the quality of education. A little consideration of these statistics will lead any thoughtful person to the conclusion that the time has now arrived when some large and comprehensive scheme of providing for the education of our young men and our young women must be provided.

* Estimated.

Table A, as inserted in last year's report, revised to date, is again included in this report in order that those interested may have before them a brief statement of revenues covering a series of years. The items for the current year are estimated so far as possible. Interesting comparisons could be made with the revenues of other state universities; but it is sufficient, perhaps, to offer the simple statement that the Ohio State University has made very rapid progress in the last decade, but has not yet reached the efficiency of similarly situated universities. A study of this table in connection with the other facts set forth in this report will suggest that an annual revenue of one million dollars is now needed to carry the work already established in the University.

A careful examination of the two lists of special appropriations will show a very generous consideration of the University and a great advance in the equipment of many of the departments. Among these appropriations special mention should be made of the provision for the railway, the sewer and the addition to the power house equipment. These three group together in providing power, transportation, and protection to the plant. Some further appropriation for these items will be needed. The appropriation for the sewer system was not quite sufficient to do all that was originally anticipated, owing to the expense made necessary by the extraordinary depth of the sewer in portions of the distance. This extension, however, may be delayed until additional buildings are constructed.

The railway was contracted for within the appropriation, but its highest efficiency will result only after provision has been made for scales and a system of tipples for unloading the coal. A further increase in the power plant will be needed as the plant is enlarged and the extension of the hot water heating system is made.

The fact that no buildings were granted by the last legislature makes the demand more imperative at the present and accounts for the increase in the requests now made of the legislature. A detailed list of these requests has been furnished to the Auditor of State for circulation to the legislature and the use of the Finance Committees in making up the Appropriation Bill. This list is included in this report for reference and a brief statement made. Detailed discussion of the items is reserved for the Finance Committees.

UNIVERSITY NEEDS.

Reference to the president's reports for the past five years will reveal repeated statements concerning certain specific needs of the University. Many of these are yet unprovided. Meantime, the growth of the University in numbers and development of new phases of the work, like the winter course in agriculture and the undertaking of work in Agricultural Extension as provided by the last session of the legislature, have developed certain new needs not hitherto mentioned. This change of condition may cause a slight difference in the accent or emphasis that might be put on certain requests, but could not eliminate those needs from present consideration. Moreover, the fact that the legislature at its last session did not provide any new buildings only serves to render more emphatic the present needs. The University can no longer live by years. It should live by decades. A single building granted each year, or even two buildings granted, might in a series of years furnish a complete set of buildings. Meantime, important interests would suffer and thousands of students would be denied the facilities to which they are justly entitled. With the present system of providing buildings under the pressure of special interests influential with the legislature, it is impossible for the Board of Trustees to make provision for a symmetrical development of the University. No one knows what may be done the following year. More important at the present time than any building or buildings is a plan that would run through a period of ten years in which the Trustees might have sufficient revenues to erect and equip buildings. A majority of the buildings on the campus have been inadequate for their need within three years of the time of completion. A distinguished alumnus said at the last commencement that there was not a single permanent structure on the campus. The fact remains, however, that the buildings now erected will probably be in service for half a century or more. Some of these buildings need enlargement now, and others will need it in the near future. The state has never provided for the University funds enough to erect as large buildings as most of the larger state universities have erected for similar purposes. This policy has kept the buildings crowded and has made expensive adjustments necessary. The inability of the Trustees to lay any plans beyond a single year is a serious embarrassment in the development of the University. Under these conditions it is exceedingly difficult, if not impossible, to determine what single building is most needed or is most vital to progress. In the attempt herein made to set forth the needs of new development, too much emphasis should not be given to the order in which these needs are named.

There is general agreement in the University that an adequate building for the work in zoology and botany should be provided. The work in zoology is now associated with physiology in a building entirely needed by physiology alone. In fact, the laboratories for zoology are being operated in the basement of the building occupied by the College of Law, where suitable provisions are impossible. The work in botany is done in a building sadly out of repair, originally constructed at small cost, and now neither safe nor adequate. The building itself is not worth as much as its contents, to say nothing of its unsatisfactory provisions. The work in horticulture and forestry cannot be put into satisfactory shape or developed until a suitable building shall be erected. The present structure, erected in the early days when the Experiment Station was located at the University, is both small and ill-suited to the work. It was originally intended more for the work of the station than for college instruction. Its construction was so cheap that it would be a waste of money to attempt any repair or extension of the building.

The original building of the University, now known as University Hall, contains all the offices of administration and is occupied by more than fifty teachers. A relief to this building should be provided in which at least two of the largest departments should have a permanent home. Moreover, this building has been criticized by the inspecting authorities, and should be made safe and modern. Its floors, stairways and electric wiring should be replaced. A system of ventilation should be installed and the building generally overhauled. It has served thirty-seven years with but temporary repairs.

No provision has ever been made for the work of educating teachers, although some years ago the legislature decided upon a policy of developing one university, a part of which should be the professional training of teachers. It is time now that the work of providing adequate professional education for teachers in the University should receive cordial support. The need of such education is nowhere more manifest than in the lack of preparation for teaching, of professional spirit and of appreciation of educational principles to be found in college faculties. The assumption that college professors or college graduates are superior teachers is often without foundation in fact. The universities of the country need a revival in the interest of effective teaching. The waste of time in our education so bitterly complained of is often traceable to the quality of teaching. One of the functions of a college of education is to stimulate a zeal in the art of teaching as a condition precedent to the development of scholarship.

The College of Agriculture, in response to recognized needs, should develop the work of Rural Engineering. This work should have a building, or an enlargement of the old Electrical Engineering Laboratory. This would not only provide for Rural Engineering, but make some needed provision for the Winter Course in Agriculture. These two phases of agricultural extension require a large floor space and some recitation rooms.

Brown Hall, now used for Civil Engineering, Architecture and Engineering Drawing, was constructed at a cost of $80,000. At the time it was expected that this building would soon need enlargement. There are now more than 800 students studying engineering drawing. The building also provides for the work in architecture and civil engineering. Economic administration requires that the students in engineering drawing should have all their work in one building. At present this is impossible. Moreover, the legislature has provided that the road testing laboratories shall be at the University. The Highway Commissioner's office needs considerable space and this could be provided at relatively small cost by the enlargement of Brown Hall. When the building was erected there was no thought of the road testing laboratory or of the work of the Highway Commissioner. It is proper that this work should be done at the University. However, rooms and floor space must be provided.

The work in physics, now occupying a building recently completed, overtaxes the capacity. The original plan contemplated a wing on either side of the building. One of these wings should be erected at once, in order to provide for existing needs.

The University Regiment now numbers 1,100 men. The work in physical education numbers more than 1,000. The armory and gymnasium is the only provision for these needs. An armory and drill hall is very much needed in order to make this work effective. This building, as stated last year, need not be of expensive construction, but ought to be large in area, in order to provide suitable facilities. At present every foot of space in the gymnasium is occupied, and it is not possible even to find space for the gun racks to protect the arms furnished by the federal government. The work in the winter term is practically abandoned, since it is impossible to engage in military exercises on the campus during that season of the year. Such a building could be readily used for the purpose of large assemblies. There is not now any place on the campus where the entire student body can assemble.

There is a group of buildings that must have consideration at one and the same time. The University shops occupy a portion of Hayes Hall. A new building for shops must be constructed before the present ones can be abandoned. Hayes Hall should be devoted to the uses of the young women of the University; provide them a gymnasium and such work as is taken only by the young women. By the time this adjustment could be made, the needs of the young men would require the exclusive use of the present gymnasium.

In general it may be observed that educational work requiring laboratories also requires large floor space. There is a limitation set upon the hours in which a laboratory may be used. An increase in the number of teachers does not, in such subjects, meet the problem as completely as in subjects where laboratory exercise is not required.

In the first place, laboratory work must be for at least two hours at a time, and frequently for three hours. This limitation itself distinguishes a laboratory from an ordinary lecture room. The University has always been marked by the large amount of work in science. The modern development of the laboratory method in such subjects as history, economics and others, makes the number of buildings and the size of them a problem not existing in the earlier college experiences.

In the near future an Administration Building should be constructed that would provide the necessary facilities for the offices, for the registering of students, and for the work of the several faculties.

The University is making request for a building for the Ohio Archaeological and Historical Society. For ten years quarters have been furnished for this society. The University is glad to render this service to an important enterprise of the state. The society, however, needs a building for its own use. The University needs the space now occupied in Page Hall. It would be pleasing to see the society with a permanent home on the campus.

The University library has for a number of years been located in Orton Hall, the only fireproof building on the campus, a building which was originally intended for geology and its kindred work. A library building would probably be the most expensive building required, since it would need to be fireproof and of large dimensions. The present crowded quarters do not provide adequate shelving for the books, nor adequate work rooms, reading rooms, or seminary rooms, so important in connection with all library work. There are several Ohio colleges with smaller libraries, fewer students, having much ampler and better provisions in the way of a library building.

In the presence of these needs it is probably useless to suggest that further provision in the way of dormitories for both men and women is urgent. Oxley Hall was occupied to the limit as soon as opened, and three such buildings would have been filled last September if they had been provided. Provision for such needs is important as a factor in protecting students against the excessive cost of living. It need not be added that such sanitary and safe quarters for a reasonable number of students would greatly increase the efficiency of the educational facilities.

The college of Agriculture for some years has been renting a considerable acreage of land (approximately seventy acres). The portion thus rented is along the Olentangy River and should be the property of the state for agricultural purposes. A very much-needed addition would be an ordinary farm within easy access, chiefly devoted to pasture, that could be used for the maintenance and care of live stock, especially during the summer months.

The above summary of the University's needs makes it manifest that if the University is to serve the state efficiently along already established lines of education, some policy of growth and development reaching through a series of years should be authorized. No wisdom can foresee the new needs that may be developed within a decade. No wisdom is needed to see the ones already existing. No serious difference of opinion would exist as to the present needs in any group of men who would make an intelligent investigation as to the work now being done by the University.

REVENUES.

The University has several sources of revenue. First, fees from students. Second, interest from endowment. Third, direct appropriations from the federal government. Fourth, proceeds from the levy authorized by law. Fifth, special appropriations made from time to time by the legislature.

Concerning these revenues it should be said that the federal revenues are expended in accordance with law, and report thereon made to the federal government. The special appropriations made by the legislature are expended for the purposes named in the Appropriation Bill. All other revenues are subject to the discretion of the Trustees. These revenues provide for the ordinary fixed charges, but do not admit of much expansion, save what is provided through the increased grand duplicate from year to year. There are just two methods, therefore, by which the needs of the University may be met, namely:

First—By increasing the special appropriations from the general revenue fund of the state. The condition of the state's revenues is such at present as not to warrant the hope of any considerable relief from this direction. Moreover, since no legislature can bind its successor or make appropriations beyond its own term of office, it is impossible to give the University any assurances upon which it may develop a plan of expansion such as is intimated above.

Second—An increase in the rate of the levy. The present state levy is practically all for education. There is a very deep-seated sentiment against the increase of this levy. This sentiment is chiefly in the cities, and is due to the fact that municipal governments have so increased their expenses as to make the local tax rate in the cities a source of constant debate. However, the University should not be required to limit its usefulness because of such sentiment against the levy or because of the inability of the state to secure sufficient funds in its general revenues to provide for the needs of education. It is not the province of the University to provide the funds, nor perhaps to suggest the method by which they should be provided; but it cannot escape the responsibility of presenting its needs to the legislature. The Trustees have no power to incur any indebtedness and must therefore confine their obligations within the funds authorized by law.

The purpose in presenting these suggestions in this connection is to bring public attention to the needs of the University and to the sources from which these needs must be supplied.

The list of items approved by the Trustees is herewith submitted. The order in which these items are presented does not express any preference of the Trustees. That question can be settled when the legislature has intimated what its policy may be.

CONCLUSION.

It is proper to state that the accounts of the University are kept by a system approved by the Bureau of Public Accounting. These accounts are examined annually upon request of the University. This system was begun in 1899. The books have been so admirably and accurately kept that considerable attention has been drawn to them by persons examining accounting systems of universities. A comparison with several of the leading state universities during the past year has revealed the fact that the University's accounting system is probably the best in the Middle West.

It is worth while to call attention to the inventory system which was inaugurated some years ago and which has served as a model for other universities. This system was completely installed before the recent movement in the state to provide an inventory system for all public institutions.

There has been installed also during the year a carefully-worked-out system of purchasing through the secretary of the Board of Trustees, who acts as purchasing agent. This has brought competitive prices and better values. Representatives of other universities have visited The Ohio State University with a view of installing this system elsewhere. This intelligent, careful and experienced management of the state's revenues has added to the general efficiency of the University and has brought its administrative side to a degree of perfection where its accounts may be clearly understood and easily grasped. Much credit is due to Mr. Carl E. Steeb, the efficient secretary of the Board for the details of this system.

The president would record his high appreciation of the spirit of unity and co-operation which has marked the action of both Trustees and Faculty during the past year in the administration of the University. The spirit of service abounds both in Trustees and Faculty. They stand ready to aid the state not only in educating young men and women, but in any other public service which it would be the pleasure of the state to desire. Already considerable public service has been rendered by members of the Faculty, and this may be taken as a prophecy of a yet larger service in the future.

The statistical tables and other reports, as required by law, are submitted herewith as a part of this report.

Very respectfully,

W. O. THOMPSON,

President.

November, 1909.
